

How it works

1

Students agree to abide by the honor code.

2

Students are interviewed by clergy to ensure that they understand the code.

3

Student Honor Association has periodic campaigns to remind students of their commitment.

VIOLATIONS

- Signed referrals are turned into the Honor Code Office. Anonymous referrals are rarely considered.
- Reviewing of a case must be agreed upon by a counselor and the director.

- Counselors recommend action to a committee (6 or 7 members) that will determine whether a student is suspended or dismissed.
- The associate dean makes the final decision on punishment and informs the student.

APPEALS: A student has five days to make an appeal to a three-person committee on procedural issues only. Their recommendation is forwarded to the dean of students who makes the final decision.
